“Relax, replenish, and rejuvenate” on your mind? Boutique hotels are here to champion the cause for you.

Travel has the power to resuscitate the spark in our everyday lives, and staying at a boutique hotel is a great way to accentuate that spark. When seeking a quiet getaway and downtime that aids your relax, replenish, and rejuvenate mission, a stunning property to pamper the senses is your companion of the hour. With these pocket-sized powerhouses increasingly winning the “where to stay” question each year, we decided to navigate through the multitude of offerings and bring you our top pick from each corner of India. #DSSCRecommends our top five boutique hotels that ought to be in your travel journal.

Primrose Villas, Chikmagalur, Karnataka

Sitting atop the Western Ghats, Primrose Villas serve up a stellar escapade. The all-glass walls of the villas, dining spaces, and lounges offer 360 degree views of the mountains. The antique furniture and fireplace bring Victorian and Jacobean era grandeur to the villas; the glass walls extend to the bathrooms, which are equipped with exclusively handmade grooming essentials. As you absorb the seamless amalgam of the indoors and outdoors, their spread of European, Chinese, North and South Indian fare will be a constant source of gustatory gratification. If you wish to venture beyond the sun-kissed days and starlit nights, sports such as golf, cricket, and football; coffee estate trails; Bhadra Tiger Reserve; Mullayyanagiri mountains; and ancient sites of Belur and Halebid are there to take your stay a notch higher.
